Understanding Concerta 18mg: The Science of Focus

Concerta (Methylphenidate HCl) is a central nervous system stimulant used to treat ADHD. Its unique mechanism involves blocking the reuptake of dopamine and norepinephrine in the brain, increasing their levels to improve focus and reduce impulsivity.

The OROS® Technology

What sets Concerta apart is its Osmotic Release Oral System (OROS®) . This advanced delivery system releases medication gradually, providing symptom control throughout the day. According to the official prescribing information:

- 22% of the dose is released immediately for rapid onset.
- The remaining 78% is released slowly over 10 hours to provide steady symptom relief.
